

PhD fellowship in the field of Music Technology

All proposals within the area of new technologies in music will be considered. We are looking for projects investigating the impact of recent technological innovation in the broad field of music, aiming for a systematic prediction of future trends, or aiming at exploring and proposing novel techniques. The investigation may look well-established contexts to experimental artistic practices. The appointed candidate will get full access to the state-of-the-art facilities at IMV.